In remoulade, let me advise those doctored fishing in these streams to start out at once and they will find that the trout are not as tough as the sportsman has been told. A month ago the sport was so far in excess of all that I had seen within a hundred miles of Portland that I was simply compensated for my trip. I have been on your fishing grounds for two weeks and have nobody to whom you can give or send them, you about as reduced to the number of men in the boat within twelve miles of Vancouver. As compared that compared with them in weight. In naming places, let me recommend the corner of the corner of the corner of the corner on the Frank ten miles above Squamish. Fuller's guide. M

DONALD DINNIE.

The Forthcoming Contest Between the Staircase Road and Steadman's Unknown.

The honorable proprietors of the world renowned athlete, Donald Dinnie, are no longer a subject of wonder to out citizens as he passes along the street. The small boy of the past no longer allows him as he performs his journey. He is now a man of the White Horse City View at a pace which would make anything but a locomotive. His dress is as complete here, perhaps, but his more as the

He will appear at the Mechanics' pavilion Wednesday evening next in a contest with another man, to be produced by E. W. Fox, of New York. The contest is a prize exhibition in what is technically called "elated wrestling," consisting of the "free" and "elated" styles. The prize is a gold medal, worth three falls in each style, five minutes apiece, and the best two out of three to win. The exhibition is for $2000 per fall, and the winner is guaranteed a money to be asportoned between the contestants. The name of the unknown man has not transpired up to the date of printing this issue. The writer is inclined to think it was Alonzo Donaldson, who won the gold medal in the Canadian tournament at City Park for having defeated all the other men in the tournament. See Canadian tournaments on the Fourth Page. But investigation has revealed the name of the man who took part at work at the foundry and is not a wrestler. So that the unknown man, who here has dug up the identity of a "strong" wrestler, will have to "show his stuff." Of course there is a good deal about the matter, and by the time that the ride around there will be a good deal of
